2 Method

Ten comparable Camps Bay, Bakoven, Clifton and Bantry Bay villa listings were pulled from Airbnb's public search results for the area on 24 July 2026 — two to five bedroom villas in the same premium tier, with sea or mountain views. Airbnb does not publish a per-listing nightly rate without check-in and check-out dates selected, so each competitor's rate is shown as not published rather than estimated: inventing a figure would be worse than leaving it blank. What is public, and shown below, is each listing's real guest rating and review count — both strong signals of established demand — together with Airbnb's own published area-wide seasonal average nightly price for Camps Bay villas, which gives a genuine market benchmark. Demand is shown as a rough tier from relative review volume: more reviews signal more completed stays over time. That is a public proxy, not the competitors' actual booking data.

6 Reading of the market

The Atlantic Seaboard villa market is mature and well reviewed: the median comparable holds a 4.90 rating over 113 reviews, so a new listing competes against established social proof rather than against price alone. Almost every comparable leads on a pool; this property does not have one, and should not try to compete on that ground. Its distinct advantages are the quiet street, the terraced vineyard garden, the sea-view braai patio, and a kitchen and interior that are demonstrably near-new – all of which photograph well and none of which the comparables offer. Pricing should be set in season bands against the published area curve, opening below it while reviews build, then moving to the curve once the listing carries twenty or more reviews.

7 Gaps to close

GAP	IMPACT	ACTION
No live listing or nightly rate set	CRITICAL	Publish the listing with an opening rate positioned against the July area average of about US$522 a night, adjusted for this property's smaller footprint against the 3–5 bedroom comparables below.
No reviews on file	HIGH	Run an opening-rate discount for the first five to ten bookings to build review velocity. Every comparable with high demand above carries 60 or more reviews.
No professional listing photography live	MEDIUM	Use the inspection photography for the listing. The comparables win on pool and sea-view imagery, so lead with the patio, the view and the kitchen.
Smaller footprint than most comparables	MEDIUM	The property is confirmed as two bedrooms and two bathrooms, both en suite. Position it as the premium small-party option for two couples or a small family rather than competing head-on with 4–5 bedroom villas. Rate per bedroom can run higher, not lower, in that bracket, and a genuine one-bathroom-per-bedroom ratio is the strongest argument for it.
No pool, where most comparables have one	MEDIUM	Counter with what they do not have: a terraced vineyard garden, a genuinely quiet street, the sea-view braai patio and a near-new kitchen. Sell the calm, not the splash.

GAP	IMPACT	ACTION
Seasonality is steep on this coast	LOW	The area average runs from about US$522 in July to about US$1,018 in January. Set season bands now rather than a flat rate, and hold firm over the December–February peak.
